

Covelva vaccine research - Shocking findings in vaccine ingredients investigation

Compiled and written: February 2019

A major independent research group investigates vaccine ingredients and finds they contain...

NO bacterial or viral antigens!
65 chemical contaminants
Dozens of bacteria, viruses,
yeasts and fungi
Medical drugs
Human and mouse DNA
Cancer-causing viruses

I write articles relevant to various health topics, based on published research which I read regularly, or on health topics in the news, or occasionally on health issues which are NOT in the news but should be!

One of the topics which I don't write a lot on, because it is such an emotive and controversial area, is to do with vaccines. This is because people on both sides of the fence can be more than a little enthusiastic (!) about their beliefs.

But this topic, I believe, is a very important one to read, think and talk about. So when some major vaccine research or issue is released, but doesn't make it to any of the news media, one has to ask why... like in this case.

An Italian research group, called Corvelva, have recently been investigating many of the current-day vaccines and their ingredients, and they have released some astonishing findings on a couple of vaccines in early 2019. They will release more reports soon.

I will summarise their findings here.

Infanrix Hexa

This is one of the childhood vaccines, covering 6 possible infections in the one shot, including diphtheria, tetanus, pertussis (whooping cough), hepatitis B, haemophilus influenzae B (flu), and Poliomyelitis 1-2-3 (polio). Corvelva found the following in the current Infanrix Hexa vaccine:

- NO individual bacterial or viral antigens for ANY of the 6 microbes that this vaccine is supposed to protect you with! NOTHING! Not a sausage!

However they did find:

- An unknown polymer which combines all protein antigens into a single compound, which makes it impossible for the immune system to identify each antigen and therefore produce antibodies against any or all of the antigens.
- 65 other chemical contaminants, of which only 35% are known.
- Many various other bacteria, parasites (including Blastocystis!) and fungi!
- Lactose - the sugar found in milk. Now you know why people develop dairy allergies and intolerances...
- Various medical drugs, including benzodiazepines (a depressant or tranquiliser drug), malaria medication, antibiotics, and more.

Gardasil 9 vaccine

Corvelva have found the following in the current Gardasil 9 (ie HPV) vaccine:

- Various bacteria and yeasts from laboratory contamination. In fact 54% of the DNA in this vaccine was from over 2 dozen other bacteria, parasite and yeast microbes which shouldn't be there!
- Human and mouse DNA. This can increase the risk of autoimmune conditions by causing immune system dysfunction.
- HPV virus DNA fragments -which are not intended parts of the vaccine per se. These are more contaminants which may be able to be integrated into your DNA and cause autoimmune reactions.
- Molluscum contagiosum virus - a type of pox virus which causes skin blemishes and rashes, now quite common but not so much in the past. Now you know why there's more of it around...
- Other retroviruses - which can become integrated into your DNA, can cause genetic mutations and cancers. This includes Human endogenous retrovirus K, L-BC virus, narnavirus, infectious equine anaemia virus, all which were found in this vaccine.
- Mouse leukaemia virus - which causes a white blood cell cancer.

The premise of vaccinations is that the immune system will mount a response against the simulated infection in the vaccine. In reality, the immune system mounts a response against ALL ingredients in a vaccine, including various adjuvants and excipients such as lactose, egg, peanut oil, aluminium, and various other microbes, including unintended (or are they?!) and often live bacteria and viruses, which can actually cause more infections after the vaccination, or actually cause the infection which the vaccine is supposedly trying to prevent. This discovery by Corvelvo scientists may explain why we are still seeing people getting these diseases, or still seeing more of these diseases and infections when 95% of the population (the increasingly increased "herd immunity level") are supposedly vaccinated.

But not all vaccines will result in antibodies being produced in all people! This is why some vaccines need 2-3 shots, as they don't "immunise" enough people with just one shot. And even after the full course, some people are still not "immune". Conversely, some people have reactions to vaccines, some with some minor symptoms, many with serious conditions (nervous system issues, chronic pain, autoimmune conditions, and many other symptoms), and many also die from them. In fact, studies show the death rate from many vaccines is up to 100 times higher than the actual death rate of the actual infection being prevented.

Our current health industry is allegedly built on the belief that vaccines are the only things which have kept us alive for millions of years, despite commercial vaccines only being around for less than 100 years! It is ONLY your immune system which can really protect you from any and all infections! And it does that well, providing you look after your immune system by eating well, getting enough sleep, reducing stress, and many other things you can do to look after your body.

Science is NEVER settled! Science does not have all the answers. Science is always changing or offering new truths! The purpose of science is to question popular beliefs and perceptions, and investigate independently and thoroughly in the search for truth, using sound and proven scientific principles. Sadly this doesn't happen much any more, with studies frequently being retracted due to poor study design, bias, shonky statistics, and corruption by being funded by the company or industry which benefits from a favourable outcome. There's also no independent checking of medications or vaccines before products are approved for use. Perhaps the Corvelva investigations will be the start of this.

To complicate matters, governments around the world are mandating compulsory vaccinations for everyone, while the same governments (and social media tools) are preventing any discussion or sharing of scientific studies which show the risks or safety issues from vaccinations. That is fascism...
